

Remei's offer to brands and retail companies

Your benefits

Benefit from over 30 years of experience in the production of traceable collections made from organic cotton, which are the result of our direct co-operation with smallholder farmers.

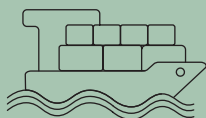

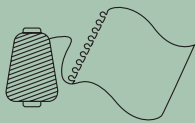

- + Support for future-orientated collection development
We support your collection development with a focus on circular design. Through the use of mono-materials, for example, we lay the basis for circular textiles.
- + Availability and responsibility for organic cotton
With our own organisations on-site in India and Tanzania, we ensure the availability of traceable organic cotton. We provide a long-term purchase guarantees to smallholders directly, in order to establish reliable trading relations. By securing market access for smallholder farmers and direct payment of premium for organic cotton above the market price, we want to actively contribute to integrating smallholder farmers into the textile supply chain and reducing risks for them.
- + Social and environmental standards in industrial production
We rely on recognized social and environmental standards and implement extensive quality control as well as strict chemical and environmental management across all production stages of the textile supply chain. From Fibre to Fashion.
- + Full transparency through digital solutions
With our digital tool 'my trace by Remei', we offer complete transparency along the entire supply chain. Each textile is equipped with a QR code that enables traceability back to the seed and provides the information for the digital product passport.
- + Transparency on climate efficiency
The economical use of resources is central to us. We are reducing our CO₂ footprint by increasing efficiency and promoting renewable energies in the production stages. We also support local climate protection projects in the organic cotton growing regions. We calculate emissions data transparently across all production stages of the value chain, including cultivation.
- + Support in achieving your sustainability goals and in communication
We support you to achieve your sustainability goals. With our customised solutions for organic cotton and supply chain transparency, etc. We support you in positioning your company or brand for the future. We provide you real content from a direct source for authentic and honest communication.
